This instruction implements AFPD 36-28, Awards and Decorations Programs, states the award purpose eligibility criteria, and process. This instruction does not apply to the Air National Guard or US Air Force Reserve units and members.

SUMMARY OF REVISIONS

This revision clarifies nomination package formats and aligns the AFMC T&E Team Award with AFI 36-2862, Test and Evaluation Awards.

Section A—Lieutenant General Bobby Bond Memorial Aviator Award

1. Purpose. Recognize an AFMC military rated crew member for outstanding contribution to AFMC's T&E mission while performing aerial duties.

2. Description. Award consists of a citation and a statue. Statue depicts an Air Force officer in flight gear mounted on a wooden base with a brass plate. Plate is engraved with the award name, year of achievement, name of recipient, and unit.

3. Eligibility Criteria. AFMC military rated crew members who performed in-flight T&E duties to further the development of Air Force aircraft technology during the previous calendar year. Each AFMC center may nominate one person.

Section B—AFMC T&E Awards (Civilian, Military, and Team Categories)

4. Purpose. Recognize an AFMC military member, civilian member, and team for superior T&E achievements and contributions within AFMC. AFMC team winner will compete for the USAF Test Team of the Year Award.

5. Description. Award consists of a citation and a plaque. Plaque has the AFMC emblem above a brass plate engraved with the award name, year of achievement, and name of recipient. A plaque with the recipients names for each year is permanently displayed at HQ AFMC/DO.

6. Eligibility Criteria. AFMC military members (Major and below) and civilian members (GM-13 and below) are eligible. Eligible teams are subordinate units of a group, an Integrated Product Team, or equivalent. Specifically, eligible are those who direct test operations, conduct test activities, or provide test facilities, test environments, or other test support critical to the development, production and deployment, and sustainment of Air Force-managed defense systems. Also eligible are those who participate in, perform the surveillance of, or support T&E to verify hypotheses, measure phenomena, develop new techniques, procedures, instrumentation or ,materials, and estimate the military use of new components, systems, or technologies. Each AFMC center may nominate one person/team.
